The Night Notre Dame Burned review – how they calmed the 'dancing angels' 4 / 5 stars 4 out of 5 stars. The 800-year-old gothic glory came within minutes of being completely destroyed.

Trained as a midwife, Chrissie Chapman went to Burundi in the nineties to open a maternity clinic and dispensary in a rural area of the country. She had been there just three years when a coup was declared, and the country descended into a state of civil war. It lasted for thirteen long years. During that time, God directed her to work with the orphans and widows. She started a centre for abandoned babies and traumatised children and saw the Lord performing remarkable miracles in the lives of people who had lost everything. Chrissie adopted three children herself, and has raised more than fifty others to young adulthood. Again and again she has witnessed miracles of protection and provision. When the war started, Chrissie, her adopted children, and the health staff were living in a rural location on top of a mountain, in a healing centre, with maternity clinic and dispensary. Every night there was gunfire, and every day people would come seeking refuge. One night, she and David Ndarhutse, the mission director, were sitting praying amid the fighting, when David said, 'Chrissie, look up.' There were dozens of angels standing on top of the walls of the healing centre. That was the night the angels came. 'From that moment on,' Chrissie records, 'I have never experienced or felt fear for my life.' Today Chrissie divides her time between Burundi, where she continues to care for the teenagers in her charge, and England, Canada and America, where she speaks widely about the faithfulness and power of God.

In the Bible stories we teach our children, the characters sometimes seem larger than life. David conquered Goliath. Moses parted the Sea. Noah built an ark before there were raindrops. Yes, they were special and chosen by God for special purposes, but different from us? Well, no. They were regular people that heard God's calling and choose to be obedient. The same is true of the shepherds in the Christmas story. God chose the shepherds to be the first to lavish adoration on the newborn Jesus. Real people, encountering God's messengers, and living out their faith in the middle of the night that's what this story is all about. Let us imagine we are sitting by the fire with the shepherds, and see the Christmas story from the shepherd's point of view.

A mother chronicles her son's journey of recovery after a hunting accident that would require twenty-five surgeries to correct, highlighting the kindness and support of strangers and her son's faith in God that saw him through.

In February 2005, I lost the most precious thing in my life, my daughter Stacy. She was my only child and my best friend. I was devastated. I felt so helpless and alone. In time, I began to write poems to her. Then I decided to have them published. I felt that it was a way to keep her memory alive and to bring me comfort through the bad days ahead. I also wanted to bring hope to other bereaved parents. There is no other pain like the pain of losing your child. May this book bring them support and hope on their journey through their terrible tragedy. They do not have to walk alone.
